

TAYLOR AUCTIONS

Herb Taylor of KDAL-TV is shown at the Kappa Pi art auction held last Wednesday in Kirby Student Center. Taylor auctioned off 40 paintings done by UMD students and faculty. The auction was a money-raising project put on by the honorary art fraternity to provide summer scholarships for worthy artists on the UMD campus.

Sno Week Ski Sojourn Stymied

Plans for the Sno Week ski trip of Feb. 8 and 9 were thrown into a turmoil last Sunday when the committee learned that there had been a mis-understanding in the cost of the venture. The overnight trip was originally scheduled for Mount Telemark at a presumed rate of $15 per person, but Sunday found an increase of $2.50.

The Telemark sojourn had already received the blessings of the committee on Student Affairs in what was generally considered a coup for the Sno Week committee.

Because of the increased cost the Telemark safari was cancelled and the committee began making arrangements for the Sawtooth Mountain area at Grand Marais. The principal differences between Telemark and Sawtooth would be a chalet for lodging that would be easy to supervise. At Grand Marais the chaperones would be confronted with the problem of policing two hotels.

According to Thomas Chamberlin, Academic Dean, "Providing proper supervision and safeguards can be assured for the participants, the new plan can be put into effect, but in the final analysis, the trip is subject to the approval of the committee on Student Affairs."

The Student Affairs committee gave its consent for Telemark with the stipulation that the Sno Week committee guarantee the good conduct of the participants. This promise was reasonable because of a tight schedule of activities which could be adequately supervised by the chaperones. But with the problem of two hotels and no chalet for Friday evening's gathering it is doubtful that the approval will be obtained.

It is understandable that the administration would exercise caution when former excursions have put this university in a poor light, public relations-wise.

It is not understandable, however, that university students are not mature enough to be a credit to the institution they represent without having to be guarded like a diabetic in a sugar refinery.

Pi Delts May Convene

Tentative plans for a regional convention of Pi Delta Epsilon, national honorary journalism fraternity are being slated for the early part of Spring Quarter according to Maxine Doolittle Ros, chapter president.

Upper Midwest chapters including Iowa, North and South Dakota, Wisconsin, Michigan and Minnesota were mailed a planned "package" of events and objectives of the convention which include a group or general discussions on the philosophy or the techniques of campus journalism.

The conference questionnaire suggests an organizational meeting of the Minnesota Association of College Editors (MACE) to discuss a system of news exchange, matters of mutual concern within the state and to enjoy the fellowship of editors with common problems. MACE is the brainstorm of PDE Gene Gruba, editor of the UMD Statesman.

Gustaf Nordin, editor of the Duluth Herald-News Tribune will collaborate with the college journalists in writing, and editing a front page journal on topics and opinions of the conferees' own choosing. This journal will be printed as a make-over of the front page of the Duluth Herald and News Tribune for one day of the conference.

Along with the serious side of the convention, UMD's Statesman will celebrate its 25th anniversary at the Silver Anniversary Ball. The Duluth campus weekly was founded in 1932.

Commission Sets Up Leadership Display

A leadership training display has been erected by the collaboration of the CSO student-faculty commission on the 2nd floor of the library.

The commission members in charge of presenting the various materials on leadership training consist of Ken Cayo, chairman, Ed Sigglekow, Virgil Kroeger, R. J. Falk, Ron Peterson, Ginny Buus and Paul Butler.

Featured in the display is the magazine, "Adult Leadership," which is carried by the UMD library. The magazine, issued monthly, features articles of help to organizations, leaders and members. Pamphlets on discussion leading and tips on improving organization leadership abilities and progress will be filed by the library for further use by the students.

Vet's Club Organizes

The UMD Vet's Club was started once again as the Fall Quarter came to an end. This club, whose purpose is to promote student participation in school activities, take part in the school's social program and to combine the general thoughts of Vets on campus, has drawn up a program of events to be put on during the remainder of the year.

These plans, which are already in progress, consist of events such as sponsoring a Sno-Week Queen candidate, presenting a program to include the married vets on campus and their families, sponsoring sport activities which will include all vets and sponsoring an annual dance comparable to with the Prom, to be held during the Winter Quarter. The Vet's club officers are Bob Pearl, president; George L. Anderson, vice-president; George Niemi, secre-

KUMD Remains Under Speech Department in Station Plan Revision

A move to separate KUMD Radio Broadcasting from the Division of Humanities, Speech department, was presented last week in an attempt to begin broadcasting on the air immediately. At the meeting a decision had to be made as to the affiliation with the Speech department of KSC.

Dr. Haakenson, the head of the Speech department states, "It would be regrettable to make such a separation, irrespective of selfish interests in behalf of the department of Speech, and I say this because we are not a big enough institution to sustain more than one broadcasting activity and that single broadcasting activity should evolve from a closed circuit to F.M. and perhaps even television. I would also envision a large measure of student participation and initiative.

The alternative would preclude any possibility of 'on the air' or 'free air' within F. M. or A. M. signal. In this scheme student operation will be wide open throughout."

President Dick Gottschald called an emergency executive board meeting on Friday night and he stated, "at all possible cost—we must remain with the Speech department." He also said, "The goal of KUMD is to operate a non-commercial educational A.M. or F.M. Broadcasting station."

CONSTITUTION REDRAWN

From the special meeting a constitution evolved which would give the Speech department final control. They set forth the purposes of KUMD as stated in the constitution:

1. To stimulate interest in broadcasting.
2. To offer opportunity for broadcasting to those interested.
3. To offer an activity to students interested in broadcasting as an extracurricular activity.
4. To present an opportunity for student experience in admission, subject to the approval of the Department of Speech.

KUMD is in the state of transition in which building a console is in progress and a panel which is being built by the engineers.

ASSISTANCE RECEIVED

WMMR of the main campus, contributed approximately $400 worth of equipment which includes 3 turntables, console equipment and a 100 watt transmitter.

KSC and Student Commission have each allotted $150 for funds maintaining further student participation.

WDSM contributed in "soft loans" one remote unit and microphone and many records of transcriptions.

KDAL donated the service of two of its engineers, Bob Dettman and Rodney Olson who are working in connection with KUMD's chief engineer Doug Hedeon.

The Department of Humanities has stated that they will build soundproof studios and are now in the process of financing the console. By Spring quarter, plans for the soundproof studio with all the necessary broadcasting equipment will be complete of operation at 100 watts.

Organizations are asked to submit their Candidates for SNO WEEK QUEEN as soon as possible to the Sno Week office, 186 KSC. Candidates must have an Honor Point Ratio of least One, and must have attended UMD for One Quarter.

tary, and Lauren Sandquist, treasurer.

According to members of this club there are 4 main reasons why this club will remain in existence. They are: (1) We have a more varied program; (2) We are not advocating drinking, but we do want a social program; (3) We have a more complete program outlined; (4) and we are trying to present a program that would include all Vets.

MR. GENE GRUBA
STATESMAN EDITOR

To the Editor:

Yes; This is UMD. This is apathy. But, who is responsible for the apathy on this campus? From what I have witnessed these past few years, it has been the Greeks at UMD, and only the Greeks, that have given 100 per cent co-operation to all Homecoming, Sno Week, prom and other activities on this campus. It is our own Greek organizations that are asked to give charitably to the different benevolences, drives, and student activities sponsored at UMD.

Yes, we have definitely witnessed a Greek Tragedy on this campus. But, how can you possibly expect the Greek organizations to carry the ball for 51 different organizations and clubs here at UMD? It is apparent that the Greeks have fallen down on their supposedly dynamic Greek Week, but can we justifiably condemn the Greeks for lack of interest in activities taken by the remaining 90 per cent of the student body?

I would say that the Beta Phi Kappa fraternity represents what Greeks are doing and can do to further the development of our student body and government. Gamma Theta Phi shows a definite interest and trend toward the charities and benevolences in and around the Duluth area. I am also certain that Sigma Tau Kappa shows itself as an organization dedicated to the development of social culture, high esteem, and the sound ritual of the Greek movement. It is also apparent that the sororities are constantly striving for that homogeneous union by their recent binding together in their new Pan-Hellenic. Are you also aware that these same sororities and fraternities turned over the entire proceeds of the Greek dance to the March of Dimes Drive?

We join with Greeks on campuses all over the nation, setting a precedent unapproached by other organizations.

I'm sure we all agree that no other organization on a campus will stir up as much emotion in a college student's life as a fraternity or a sorority. Although the Greeks on this campus make up only 10 per cent of the student body, it has been said that they actually take an active participation in more than 60 per cent of the positions and activities sponsored by the school.

Yes, Mr. Editor: this is UMD, this is apathy, but can we justifiably condemn the hyper-active Greeks for a condition which pervades the entire campus?

To the Editor:

Last week the Student Commission expressly asked you and your STATESMAN staff to publish an article informing the student body that the Student Commission would pay half the cost of sending as many students as wanted to hear this speech the coming Sunday night in Minneapolis. The speech was of extreme educational value, and the speaker, Walter Lippmann, is himself highly recognized in his field.

On Friday, the day of your edition, we searched in vain trying to locate this article, which we expressly asked you to print. We know full well that your reporter, who was at our meeting, got the information and turned it in. Anonymous Reviews Robin Hood

We will have to wait a long time before the movie industry finds another romantic lead as engaging as Douglas Fairbanks, who starred in Alan Dwan's 1922 production of Robin Hood, the first of the UMD winter series of film classics.

Douglas Fairbank's unpretentious humor and spontaneous gymnastics were thoroughly enjoyable. His tongue-in-cheek heroics and his ease before the camera gave the impression that he was really a member of the audience who enjoyed the picture so much that he stepped into it for fun. Wallace Beery, cast as "King Richard of the Lion Hearted", tore ferociously at legs of mutton, quaffed great beakers of wine, laughed uproariously, pinched the palace wenches, rewarded Good and punished Evil, in an acceptably regal manner.

The villain, nicknamed "Old Eyeballs" by the grade school audience in the second row, was thoroughly despicable, and in the last reel, met a grisly end, justly deserved. The heroine was the image of chastity. Baby-faced and flat-chested, she risked life and limb to protect her virtue from the dastardly assaults of evil Prince John and his villainous cohorts. However, it was disconcerting to at

Plastic Card May Cut Sales to Minors

By NEIL LANDRY
FEATURE EDITOR

Of late, the sale of liquor to minors in Duluth has received serious attention from all parties involved.

The situation is of interest to UMD students because of the fact that most collegians are included in the age group that is troublesome as far as minors drinking is concerned.

Because of recent arrests involving youths under 21, liquor dealers and barmen met last Sunday to take action to protect themselves. As a result of the session, the liquor handlers have pledged themselves to support state legislation which would result in a uniform system of identification, and so prevent further sales of liquor to minors.

According to Sgt. Thomas O'Hehir, chief of the local police juvenile bureau, one form of such legislation to be put before the state this year would consist in using Minnesota state driver's licenses, with the birthdate and the picture of the operator securely enclosed in plastic, as uniform identification. The most obvious flaw in this plan is that not everyone is capable of obtaining a driver's license, and so only partial coverage of minors would result.

As to the feasibility of a municipal system of identification, O'Hehir said that cities which have tried it have found the cost of such a move prohibitive.

It seems that any foolproof scheme to provide statewide uniform identification would mean that a considerable amount of time will elapse before the plan can become effective.

"In the meantime," says O'Hehir, "we're going to crack down, and anyone caught falsifying his identification will be prosecuted." Regular policing of local taverns and liquor outlets will have to serve until state lawmakers pass the appropriate legislation.

However much the liquor dealers and employees' unions are commended for their "self-policing" of laws forbidding sales to minors, it must be noted that none of the dealers were particularly careful about "policing" until they were fined or until their liquor licenses were endangered. Previously the law received only lip service from city and state administrators, and barmen were extremely lax in preventing offenses.

Presumably one can expect the "self-policing" to last only as long as the crack-down by police continues, or until the elegant plastic cards arrive.

The administrators, dealers, and barmen can little commend themselves for ignoring the problem until their current financial setbacks produced the necessary reaction.

Need Pro Donors

Mrs. Elizabeth Haley of the UMD employment service reports that St. Mary's hospital, Duluth, is short of professional blood donors. Professional donors are those who are placed on a permanent list and can give blood regularly.

There is an urgent need for type "O" negative blood at the moment.

Prospective donors can sign up at the Blood Bank at St. Mary's and if the blood is of the desired type the donors will be reimbursed.

Students between the ages of 18 and 21 must have the written consent of their parents to contribute to the St. Mary's blood bank.

UMD Students Give Petey $293; Gamma Project Commended

"Petey," symbol of UMD's Christmas spirit, has just finished his fourth year of residence on campus. "Petey" refers to the annual Christmas drive held by Gamma Theta Phi for the purpose of supplying Duluth's needy children with presents to open on Christmas morning.

This year, Gamma sent out $293 worth of Christmas presents to 104 area children. With the help of Sigma Psi Gamma, responsible for the wrapping of the presents, and 14 other organizations who gave monetary contributions, Gamma wound up its most successful campaign since the drive's beginning in 1953.

According to Mrs. Florence Frarey, child welfare supervisor in charge of locating needy children, "The members of the Gamma Theta Phi have done a magnificent job of providing Christmas gifts for many deserving children. It is unfortunate that they cannot themselves see the joy of the girl who received the figure skates and the comments from her boarding mother who said that Carol's whole Christmas revolved around those skates, they would feel well rewarded. Since the fraternity, through their "Petey" drive, provided gifts for 104 children pleasure such as Carol's was multiplied many times."

Notices

Sigma Psi Gamma will meet 7:30 Tuesday, January 29 at 4315 Cooke Street.

By MARJORIE PAPKE

The Institute of International Education gives students the opportunity to put a third dimension to travel abroad by a year of study in a foreign country. Fulbright travel grants are also available to supplement the scholarships.

It is wise to begin planning a year prior and much forethought should be given to the relative value of a year's study abroad and where it would be of value in your plans for the future. A secure command of the language of the country is an absolute necessity and a random Bonjour or Auf Wiedersehen doesn't help too much when a technical lecture is given. European universities expect their students to do much of the work on their own so it is also good to know if you have the independent study habit.

Last year there were an estimated 126,000 foreign students in 56 states and territories; and it is increasing, so if you wish to become a student diplomat and want further information, it is available in Room 113, KSC.

See Advisors On Cancel-Aid

Instructors should sign cancel-aid forms only if the student has already obtained his adviser's signature. In no case should a cancel-aid form be accepted unless the student has consulted with his own faculty adviser.

If a student has missed approximately one week of classes, it would be helpful if instructors could report such absences to the acting director of the Office of Student Personnel Services. An attempt will be made to clarify the particular situation through cancelling the student's registration or determining the reason for his absence. This is being done on an experimental basis for the current quarter.

Women's Dorms Expand; Cost is Partially Covered

UMD expansion continues with the aid of a loan of $214,000 recently granted to the school. The money will be used in helping to construct a new unit of women's dormitories.

The new units will be constructed in the same "gear-tooth" pattern used in the new women's dormitories now in use.

In addition to the federal loan, $54,384 will be raised on an amortization program. The total project will cost $268,384, with the loan portion to be paid off through operating income. Construction is to begin at the earliest possible moment.

The University has submitted a request for $126,000 to Governor Freeman to aid in future construction of a men's dormitory. At present two floors of Torrance Hall are being used as a women's dorm.

There are apparently several reasons why the women's facilities are being constructed in advance of the men's. They would seem to be: (1) ladies first (2) in the interest of simplicity and unity it would be better to complete all the women's facilities prior to starting the men's rather than having them both in a state of semi-completion at one time (3) the loan was granted with the stipulation that it be used for the women's dormitories.

With the completion of the all new dormitory units, upper campus integration will virtually be completed.

The architect for the project is A. Reinhold Melander.

UMD Plays Tech JV's Tonight and Tomorrow

The UMD pucksters have a weekend rest from the MIAC, but not from hockey as they play the Michigan Tech Junior Varsity tonight and tomorrow night at the Curling Club. The games will start at 8 p. m. with 20 minute periods.

The Tech JV's who provide the talent for their Western Conference varsity are usually loaded with from 90-100 per cent Canadian talent from Southern Ontario. The squad, considered good enough to give their varsity a battle, will attempt to avenge 3-2 and 9-2 losses suffered last year.

In the first contest three returnees provided UMD with the 3-2 victory. Elmer Schwartz, Arless Wright and Harvey Flaman kept UMD always one goal ahead of the fighting Techmen. In the second game, three goals by Harvey Flaman in the first period iced the affair. Held to only one goal in the second frame, the Bulldogs tallied five times for the 9-2 rout.

The only damage suffered by UMD in the two game affair was a broken wrist by Alex Sisto on the first play of the first game.

The Bulldogs play a return match with the JV's at Houghton on February 15 and 16.

Returning to conference action, UMD will face St. John's at Collegeville, Minnesota on Tuesday.

Bulldog Notes by

C. Jeanetta

School Spirit: Last week this column urged better attendance at our athletic contests. The results were very good. Some 3,000 fans were on hand to support our teams in their quest for victories. These turnouts were indeed very satisfying.

As far as the basketball game was concerned there was only one cloud to blacken an otherwise perfect sports event. This cloud hovered over the cheering section. It was a silent, mysterious cloud that seemed to put the damper on our cheering section, which had every reason to cheer for this was one of the greatest sports contest ever staged at UMD.

I'm sure that I'm not alone when I say that it is sickening to find that a handful of visitors from Gustavus were making more noise than 1400 home town fans. Our teams have to defeat howling, cheering crowds every time they play a game away from home. Why should they have to come home to a crowd that does very little to encourage them to play better, heads up ball.

All of our opponents in the MIAC play before hometown crowds that are behind them 100 per cent all of the time. In St. Johns' for instance the home crowd contributes a big share to every victory. Any UMD basketball player will tell you how much a visiting team has to go through every time they play before a St. Johns home crowd or for that matter any other MIAC partisan crowd.

Our cheerleaders had the poorest support Saturday night they have ever had. Every cheer they attempted to lead met with what I hesitate even to call half-hearted response. I can't see how anyone expects a team to play the kind of ball they want to see, if they sit back and watch the game as though they are watching an opera. Cheering at games with the cheerleaders is as much a part of basketball as the players themselves. Cheering is not juvenile as many of you feel it is. When you cheer with the cheerleaders and support your team all the way, you'll feel as though you helped to win the game, not just watch your team rack up another win or bow in defeat. Our very good teams need your all-out support if you expect to see top notch performances. Many exciting and entertaining nights lie ahead when you find yourself supporting your teams and our very deserving cheerleaders.

victory at St. John's and a 7-3 win in Duluth. The second victory, a hotly fought contest, provided UMD with the MIAC championship. St. John's, considered a title threat this season, was beaten by St. Thomas 8-2. The Bulldogs handed St. Thomas a 4-0 beating in the first game.

KLEIS SHINES

Jerry Kleisinger, goaltending ace from Regina, kicked out 47 shots while allowing only two goals as UMD swept undefeated through the first four games of the MIAC schedule.

The Bulldogs whipped Hamline 8-0 at the Curling Club, stopped Macalester 5-2 in their first away from home game on outdoor ice, then beat Gustavus 8-0 at St. Peter, and St. Thomas 4-0 at the Curling Club.

Scoring punch for UMD has been provided by two line combinations. Elmer Schwartz, Harvey Flaman and Butch Curran have accounted for 14 goals, and Bernard Cousineau, Larry Cronkhite and Don Wilkie nine. The third line of Alex Sisto, Mike Horn, and Bob Smith picked up one goal.

The blue line corps of Don Judnick, Ron Pretlac, John Bymark and Jerry Abelsen has given Kleisinger fine defensive protection, stopping enemy threats effectively.

Coach Connie Pleban has little worry if he should decide to replace a Kleisinger in the nets. Dick Gustafson, a freshman from Fort Frances, has shown Pleban fine goaltending in practices and will see action as UMD makes the second round of the conference.

UMD Bulldogs Beat Gustavus 105-102 Play Host to Concordia

On Wednesday, January 31, UMD's basketball Bulldogs will meet the Concordia Cobbers on the Bulldog's home court.

Bill Quenette and company, winners of three games in the past two seasons will be out to avenge numerous losses at the hands of the Bulldogs. The Cobbers have improved in the past year. They had been in the doldrums due to a long losing streak, but now seem to be coming into their own. Their most recent victory was a hard-fought one point win over Gustavus.

Coach Norm Olson's hopes for a successful campaign against the remaining MIAC opponents hinge to a great extent on Vince Ekroot and freshman Gene Evans. Their performances against Gustavus last week brought varied and sundry comments from both the coaching staff and the fans.

Evans came through with 25 points in last Saturday's game to lead the Bulldogs to their triumph over the Gusties.

Ekroot, ineligible until this quarter, played one of his finest games. His 15 points and outstanding rebounding contributed immensely to the outcome of the game.

Both of these boys are expected to see extensive action in Wednesday's game against the Cobbers.

BOB MONSON

Bob Monson, one of UMD's leading scorers, hails from Denfeld. A 6 ft. 2 in. forward, Bob has been a consistent high scorer this year. He is on his way to becoming one of UMD's all time leading point makers. Seasoned by a year's competition, Monson is, in his sophomore year, one of coach Norm Olson's leading starters.

By JULIE COHEN

Last Saturday night, before the largest Phy Ed building crowd of the season, UMD's basketball Bulldogs out-scored a never-say-die Gustavus team. The final score was 105-102. But, that score cannot tell the story of the game. It was far more than a high-scoring game.

Hero's honors must be awarded to a member of the losing team. A young man, D. L. Smith, by name, led all bucket men with 41 points. Quite a feat, forsooth, Smith, lean and lank, is one of Coach Gus Young's proteges. He has been admirably tutored in all the fine points of the game. His uncanny shots were popped in from all over the floor. Is this boy infallible—will he ever score 100 points in a game, as Young predicted? This ought to prove very interesting! It is also noteworthy to mention that Dwayne, pen-named D. L., is considered by the MIAC officials to be one of the finest young gentlemen in the league, on or off the floor.

Gus Young, the king of clowning coaches, is one of the most unusual mentors ever to appear on the UMD basketball court. His entrance was greeted by a chorus of shouts and cheers—from fan and rival alike. His every action was noted by the fans. There was nary a moment when a Young antic was not whole-heartedly received. An-

'Esko Night' On Thursday

APPRECIATION NIGHTS are being arranged in conjunction with several UMD Basketball games. The first will be Esko Night, when past and present greats of Esko basketball fame will be honored. It is scheduled at 8 p. m. Thursday, Jan. 31, when the UMD Bulldogs meet Concordia. Fast-improving Concordia, coming out of a long slump, dumped tough Gustavus by a single point the night before UMD went right down to the wire to stave off a Gustie rally, 105-102, in the Bulldog gym. The appreciation nights are a project of the UMD student commission. Student Athletic commissioner Harvey Flaman, high-scoring center on the UMD hockey team, is heading arrangements.

other phase of college basketball as seen by Bulldog backers.

For all of those people who were not fortunate enough to latch onto a Sunday paper, the details of the game must be reiterated.

Saturday was an unforgettable day—one to go down in the annals of UMD sports history. Both hockey and basketball squads played before crowds of better than 1400 fans.

Rough and rowdy Owen Wal-lin of the Gusties was second high man on the floor with 30 points.

Gene Evans, freshman guard from Superior Central, led the Bulldog attack with 25. A mighty score considering he played only 26 minutes—a little better than half the game.

Other Bulldog leaders were Bob Monson with 24 and Jack McKillop with 22 points.

JON SAMPSON

Jon Sampson, another product of Denfeld, is in his second year at UMD. Known as a good defensive guard, Sampson couples aggressiveness and speed to stop many high scoring opponents. Standing 6 ft. 1 in. high, Jon also gets a share in the scoring. Teaming with Monson, Sampson has run up many fast-break plays for points.

Birman and Tennison are the swimming team's returning let-termen. These boys and five others will compete against Macalester in a dual meet at the UMD pool on Friday, February 1.

Tankers in Training

UMD's swimming team is holding daily workouts in preparation for scheduled meets this year. The first meet was held last Wednesday at St. Thomas. The first home meet will be held Friday, February 1, at the UMD pool.

Bob Antila, a top team member last year, has dropped out of competition due to work obligations. The members of the team at present are Laurel Smith, Stevens Point, Wis.; John Upihegrove, East; Tom LaSalle, East; Tom Bradseth, Central; Tom Brown, Central; Lyman Marshall, Central; Dick Niemiste, Eveleth; Tim Birman, Central; and Harley Tennison, Central.

Smith, Upihegrove, LaSalle, Bradseth and Brown, all freshmen, are in their first year of competition. This will help UMD because an entry in this event may give them enough points to come away with a high standing.

Marshall, a sophomore, is a service returnee entering his first year of MIAC competition. In 1954 he was a letterman at the University of Minnesota. Niemiste is a transfer student from Eveleth JC. He has had some experience as a high school swimmer.

Birman and Tennison are let-termen from last year. They won or placed in several events

least one modern Hollywood-conditioned viewer to find a costume romance heroine with less sex appeal than Thelma Ritter. Students of the evolution of popular criteria of feminine beauty could draw some interesting and, perhaps, disturbing conclusions.

The plot of Robin Hood was appropriately simple. From the first reel, everybody knew who the hero was and who the villain was and the audience was completely relieved of the burden of suspense. We were assured that the hero would never do anything unworthy and that the villain would never do anything to mitigate our contempt. All in all Robin Hood was a completely acceptable romance.

It did not pretend to be anything more than it was. The audience was asked to do nothing but sit back and enjoy itself.

In spite of its technical imperfections, Robin Hood was very entertaining and enlightening. Every serious movie-goer or TV-viewer can improve his understanding and appreciation of modern cinematographic drama by attending the film classics series. It goes without saying that we cannot appreciate what is being done unless we know what has been done. Serious students may be assured that the films will be stimulating and educational. Sociology students can ruminate about an era in which we did not have to name our stars "Tab," "Rory," and "Rock," to insure their acceptance as masculine. Theology students can reflect upon the lucidity of the good and evil choice.

Serious musicians, if bored with the film, can sit back and listen to the excellent accompaniment provided by Mr. Jackson and Mr. Marshall. Humanities students, after the show while sitting on the floor drinking beer out of old Mason jars, can discuss the development of popular conceptions of the dramatic. (G. D.)
